Electronic Turnkey Solutions – One Stop Shop

Need a product, but don't want to manage its design, development, manufacture and delivery? The ELMG electronic turnkey solution or one stop shop is the answer.

ELMG: Turn Key Solutions – Just turn the key

Turnkey Products - From Concept to Delivery

When we started out we thought that ELMG would do just the electronics design and development. People soon asked us to do the whole process, so the electronic turnkey solution service was created. With your customer at the center, ELMG provides all the parts of your business that you do not want to be good at, letting you concentrate on what you do best.

ELMG will take care of your project management, design and development. Then we will launch your product to manufacture and ensure that the supply chain for components works. We can even arrange stocking and delivery logistics if required so you place orders with us and the product gets shipped to your customer.

Project Management

ELMG project management experience and expertise includes the complete development of internationally compliant electronic and power electronic products with complete supply chain and delivery logistics based on go to market planning. A strong understanding of and experience in operating with large multi-nationals in various countries makes ELMG a great project management solution for developments where your large partner is insisting on project management oversight.

Advantages

The main advantage of an electronic turnkey solution is you get one point of contact and the back end part of your business is all taken care of. The design, the development, engineering, the document control, the change control, the product testing and standards compliance all seamless to your business. We have found this suits starts ups and entrepreneurs looking to get a product out on to the market. It also seems to suit larger companies who then concentrate on their customers and their needs.

If you only need the design and development, that's OK. If you need development and manufacturing but want to handle the logistics - no problem. If you need project management only - that's good too. Let us know your combination and we'll create an electronic turnkey solution to suit.

We can project manage the entire process for you from development right through to arranging clip and ship logistics.

What Kind of Products Can You Turnkey?

Pretty much anything electronic. We would struggle to deliver a power station or a submarine but ask us for what you need and we'll try to say yes.
